Program designed to educate individuals on how to identify and eliminate hazards in the workplace or other environments that can lead to slips, trips, and falls. This training covers a range of topics, including the importance of proper footwear, the proper cleaning and maintenance of floors, the use of warning signs and barricades, and the safe use of ladders and other equipment.

Participants in this training will learn how to recognize common hazards that can cause slips, trips, and falls, such as wet or greasy floors, uneven surfaces, cluttered walkways, and poorly maintained equipment. They will also learn techniques to reduce the risk of these hazards, including proper housekeeping, using appropriate footwear, and taking extra caution in high-risk areas.

Through this training, participants will understand the impact of slips, trips, and falls on their safety and wellbeing, as well as the financial and legal implications for organizations. The goal of this training is to provide individuals with the knowledge and skills needed to create a safer and more secure environment for themselves and others.

Benefits

Slipping, tripping, and falling prevention training provides several benefits for both individuals and organizations, including:

- Improved safety: By educating individuals on how to identify and eliminate hazards that can lead to slips, trips, and falls, this training can help reduce the number of accidents and injuries in the workplace or other environments.
- Reduced costs: Slips, trips, and falls can result in costly medical bills, lost productivity, and potential legal liabilities. By preventing these incidents, organizations can save money and resources.
- Increased productivity: When employees feel safe and secure in their work environment, they are more likely to be productive and engaged in their work.

- Compliance with regulations: Many regulatory bodies require organizations to provide slipping, tripping, and falling prevention training to employees. By complying with these regulations, organizations can avoid potential fines and legal penalties.
- Improved morale: When employees feel that their safety is a priority, it can lead to improved morale and job satisfaction.

Target group

- Employees in high-risk industries such as construction, manufacturing, and healthcare where there is a higher risk of slips, trips, and falls.
- Workers in facilities management and maintenance roles, who are responsible for identifying and eliminating hazards in the workplace.
- Individuals who work in retail or hospitality settings where there is a high level of foot traffic and potential for spills and other hazards.
- Older adults or individuals with mobility or balance issues who may be more susceptible to slips, trips, and falls.
- New employees who may not be aware of potential hazards in the workplace.

Requirements

No Prerequisites required. Anyone can complete this course.

Training outline

Introduction to slips, trips, and falls: Understanding the causes and consequences of these incidents and their impact on safety, productivity, and finances.

- Hazard identification: Recognizing potential hazards such as wet or greasy floors, uneven surfaces, cluttered walkways, and poorly maintained equipment.
- Prevention strategies: Techniques to reduce the risk of slips, trips, and falls, including proper housekeeping, using appropriate footwear, and taking extra caution in high-risk areas.
- Safe practices: Proper use of ladders, handrails, and other equipment, as well as the use of warning signs and barricades.
- Emergency response: Steps to take in the event of a slip, trip, or fall, including reporting procedures and first aid.
- Workplace policies and regulations: Understanding workplace policies and regulations related to slips, trips, and falls, and the legal and financial implications of non-compliance.
- Personal responsibility: Encouraging individuals to take personal responsibility for their safety and the safety of others in the workplace or other environments.

These topics provide a comprehensive overview of the key aspects of slipping, tripping, and falling prevention and can be customized to meet the specific needs of the target audience.
