The principles of risk management and risk assessment as laid out in ISO 31000:2018 and IEC 31010:2019 are the focus of this training. It will teach you how to spot potential dangers, evaluate them, and check that your work abides by global norms.

ISO 31000:2018 provides general guidance applicable to any organization. It explains the principles, framework, and process of risk management in a clear and concise manner. By following this guidance, organizations can establish effective risk management practices.

ISO 31010:2019 complements this by offering explanations on how to utilize risk assessment techniques. These techniques can be implemented at each step of the risk management process.

When these two guidance documents are combined, organizations can achieve effective risk management strategies.
