Governments worldwide have taken noteworthy strides in countering bribery through international accords such as the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions and the United Nations Convention against Corruption. Within the Republic of Indonesia, the commitment to combat corruption has been solidified through Constitution No. 8 of 1981 and Constitution No. 31/1999, both dedicated to eradicating corruption in the reformation era.

Nevertheless, legislation alone cannot fully resolve this complex issue. It falls upon organizations to proactively contribute to the fight against bribery. This necessitates the establishment of robust anti-bribery management systems. ISO 37001:2016 serves as a valuable resource, empowering organizations to construct comprehensive frameworks for combating bribery effectively.

Learn to implement the ISO 37001 standard for anti-bribery management systems. This highly rated online course helps you understand the processes and tools, and design an audit program for your organization.
