Internal Audit is an important role for maintaining and improving the system, it is an integral part of implementing the system. The International Standard for auditing management systems has just been updated, giving more guidance than ever before. ISO 19011:2018, Guidelines for auditing management systems, will help with the effective audit of those management systems to ensure continuous improvement, allowing harmonization across systems and a uniform approach of the auditing process where there are multiple systems in place.

Risk management is the identification, assessment, and prioritization of risks followed by coordinated and economical application of resources to minimize, monitor, and control the probability and/or impact of unfortunate events or to maximize the realization of opportunities.

The auditor should also note that the organization has to determine the extent of documented information needed to provide objective evidence of the application of risk based thinking. Based on this the auditor needs to be equipped with an understanding and implementation of QHSE Risk Management.
