The share of vehicles with electric drives in road traffic is increasing rapidly. In this context, a safety-related issue gains in importance, especially for maintenance and repair personnel: the safe handling of high-voltage technology. This training unit serves as an introduction to this challenge in light of the need for staff qualification.

Benefits

At the end of the e-learning, the participants should be able to learn the following areas:

- Hazards from electric drive systems
- Training for work on vehicles with a high-voltage drive system

Target group

Employees of car dealerships
Fleet managers
Automotive mechanics and service technicians
Automotive Sales Representatives
Interested parties from related industries
